Now offering one-of-a-kind tuner button sets crafted in beautiful woods

BAY CITY, MI – July 11, 2017 – (GuitarPR) – Charis Acoustic, known for extraordinary acoustic guitars built by well-respected luthier, Bill Wise, has announced the grand opening of their unique Tuner Button Store.

The Charis Acoustic Tuner Button Store features a wide variety of wooden replacement Buttons designed to fit Gotoh 510's L5, BL5, ML5 keys. Each unique set of buttons is personally crafted to exacting standards and shown individually in the store. When a customer chooses a set of buttons, what they see is what they will actually get.

According to Bill Wise, “We’ve been making these tuner buttons to be used on our own instruments for much of the last decade. During that time, we’ve perfected the crafting process so that we are now able to produce larger quantities than we need in house and can now make them available to the public for their own use.”

Currently, Charis Acoustic Tuner Buttons are offered in a variety of configurations using African Blackwood, Cocobolo, Brazilian, Koa, Cocobolo, Ebony, Pau Ferro and Ziricote. Single wood button sets are available along with multi-wood inlaid versions. Custom configurations are also an option upon inquiry.

Pricing for tuner button sets starts at $45. All sets can be seen on the store at:
