Rivolta Guitars by Dennis Fano to Introduce Full Line at Summer NAMM Show

Innovative new models to be announced at the Nashville event

NASHVILLE, TN – July 11, 2019 – (GuitarPR) – Rivolta Guitars, designed by the highly acclaimed guitar maker, Dennis Fano, will be exhibiting at the Summer NAMM show in Nashville, July 18-20, 2019 at booth #1627 in the Exhibitors Hall on level 3.

Show attendees can see and try out these extraordinary instruments and speak directly with recently appointed Business Development Manager, Wes Steed. Visitors to the Rivolta booth will also be able to pick up a copy of a beautiful new 36-page brochure that displays in great detail the entire 2019 line.

Launched in late 2015 as a partnership between Dennis Fano and Eastwood Guitars, the Rivolta line has grown dramatically, featuring 2 body shapes; the Combinata and the Mondata, available in both deluxe, chambered and junior, solid body options.

Dennis Fano is currently featured in the highly prestigious Atlanta Museum of Design exhibition 'Wire and Wood: Designing Iconic Guitars', alongside guitar design legends Leo Fender and Paul Reed Smith. Fano has been developing exciting new models for the Rivolta line which will be announced at the Nashville event.

"As 2018 saw us launch and develop the Combinata and Mondata guitar lines, 2019/2020 plans are really heating up and seeing our first expansion beyond straight six strings into a new Mondata Baritone model and a Combinata Bass," said Dennis Fano. "We will make both of the new models available to pre-order from late summer with delivery expected before the end of 2019."

New Rivolta dealer opportunities are opening up and those interested in carrying the line should plan to visit with their representatives at the Summer NAMM show, or contact Business Development Manager Wes Steed by email at dealers@rivoltaguitars.com or call 615-635-2382.
